

I have taught at Christ the King School for 23 years. I have spent 18 of those years as a fifth grader teacher. I have also taught third grade, sixth grade, seventh grade World Geography, and tech class.

I am originally from New Jersey, down by the shore. I came to Vermont to attend Castleton University where I received a Bachelor of Science. I then received a Master's degree in Elementary Education from the College of Saint Joseph in Rutland.

Teaching is kind of a family business. Both my parents and mother-in-law were teachers, and my husband is also a teacher. I love spending time with my family, and I especially enjoy watching my son, who is now a senior in high school, play soccer.

I love teaching because I like to make learning fun for my students. I really enjoy working with upper elementary students who are independent learners, but who also still have a love for learning.
